REPEATEDLY INCREASED Child Labor Evil Nap Profit System

National Committee Seeks Injunction of Federal Antitrust Laws to Free Children From Economic Slavery

By A. F. of L. News Service

New York, N. Y.—Child labor exploiters throughout the United States have taken advantage of the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the case of the National Child Labor Council, Inc. v. United States, to increase their profits by increasing the number of children in the labor force.

The National Child Labor Council, Inc. is a national organization that seeks to protect the rights of children. It has filed a suit in federal court to enjoin the Federal Antitrust Laws from being applied to the child labor industry.

The suit is based on the fact that the Federal Antitrust Laws were enacted to protect the public interest. It argues that the child labor industry is not a business and therefore is not subject to the laws.
